Web Marketing Therapy's Wild Web Women Declare Voting Season for the Second Annual Social Media Marketing Man Crush Poll

Leading web marketing women honor guys who make dynamic social media marketing look good

SANTA BARBARA, CA— It's been one year since Web Marketing Therapy's Wild Web Women published the 2009 list of Top Marketing Man Crushes, which reached epic buzz levels as a fun way to honor the guys in marketing who inspire the way millions of people think about marketing, technology, and communications.

The Wild Web Women have declared a new list for the 2nd Annual Web Marketing Therapy Social Media Marketing Man Crush Poll, and voting is now open. These fellas are not only authorities in their fields, but excellent educators, speakers, authors, and thought leaders. Among the 2010 Social Media Marketing Man Crush nominees are last year's winner Guy Kawasaki, and new faces such as Mashable's hottie honcho Pete Cashmore and "Toilet Paper Entrepreneur" guy Mike Michaelowicz.

Note: "Marketing Man Crush" is a term that refers to the dreamy infatuation a web woman develops for a web guy due to the hotness of his social media marketing prowess. This kind of healthy crush may lead to symptoms such as inspiration and innovative behaviors in web marketing.

Vote now for these Wild Web Women's Top Social Media Marketing Man Crushes:

- Peter Shankman – Entrepreneur and Founder of Help A Report Out (aka HARO)
- Chris Brogan – Blogger, Author and Social Media Thought Leader
- Mike Volpe – Co-Host of Hubspot TV and VP Marketing at Hubspot
- Lee Odden – Founder and CEO of TopRank Online Marketing
